Cover story: Hour of Code in Taiwan!

With the rising integration of smart technologies in the workforce and daily lives, The Alliance Cultural Foundation (ACF) recognizes the importance of technical literacy for future generations. ACF, Junyi Academy (誠致教育基金會) and partners introduce Hour of Code (HOC), a global movement aimed to raise awareness on coding education in schools, to parents and teachers of Taiwan. ACF aims to reach 200,000 users in 2016 as well as work with teachers and professional volunteers through a series of workshops to train and, more importantly, to develop a curriculum and blueprint to bring into all classrooms... Read more

Age class of the Amis tribe

Taiwan, origin of the Austronesian language family, is an island of 16 officially recognized indigenous tribes; its largest – the Amis, stands for over one-third of its total indigenous population. Some of the best preserved traditions of the Amis people are found in the Kiwit Village, a living museum located in the pristine East Coast of the island, and one of the earliest settlements of its people. There, several endangered cultural traditions of the tribe still remain such as the attire and intricate craftsmanship of the feathered Amis headdress expressing the age class of its men, essential to indicating not only the age, but rank of the individual... Read more

Amis Harvest Festival

Ruisui Township is located in Hualien County in the East Rift Valley, between the Central Mountain Range and the Coastal Mountain Range, with spectacular landscapes that straddle both sides of Provincial Highway 9. This township possesses many attractions for outdoor enthusiasts. Culture enthusiasts will also find that there is much to see and do here as this is home to the indigenous Amis, Truku and Bunun tribes... Read more
